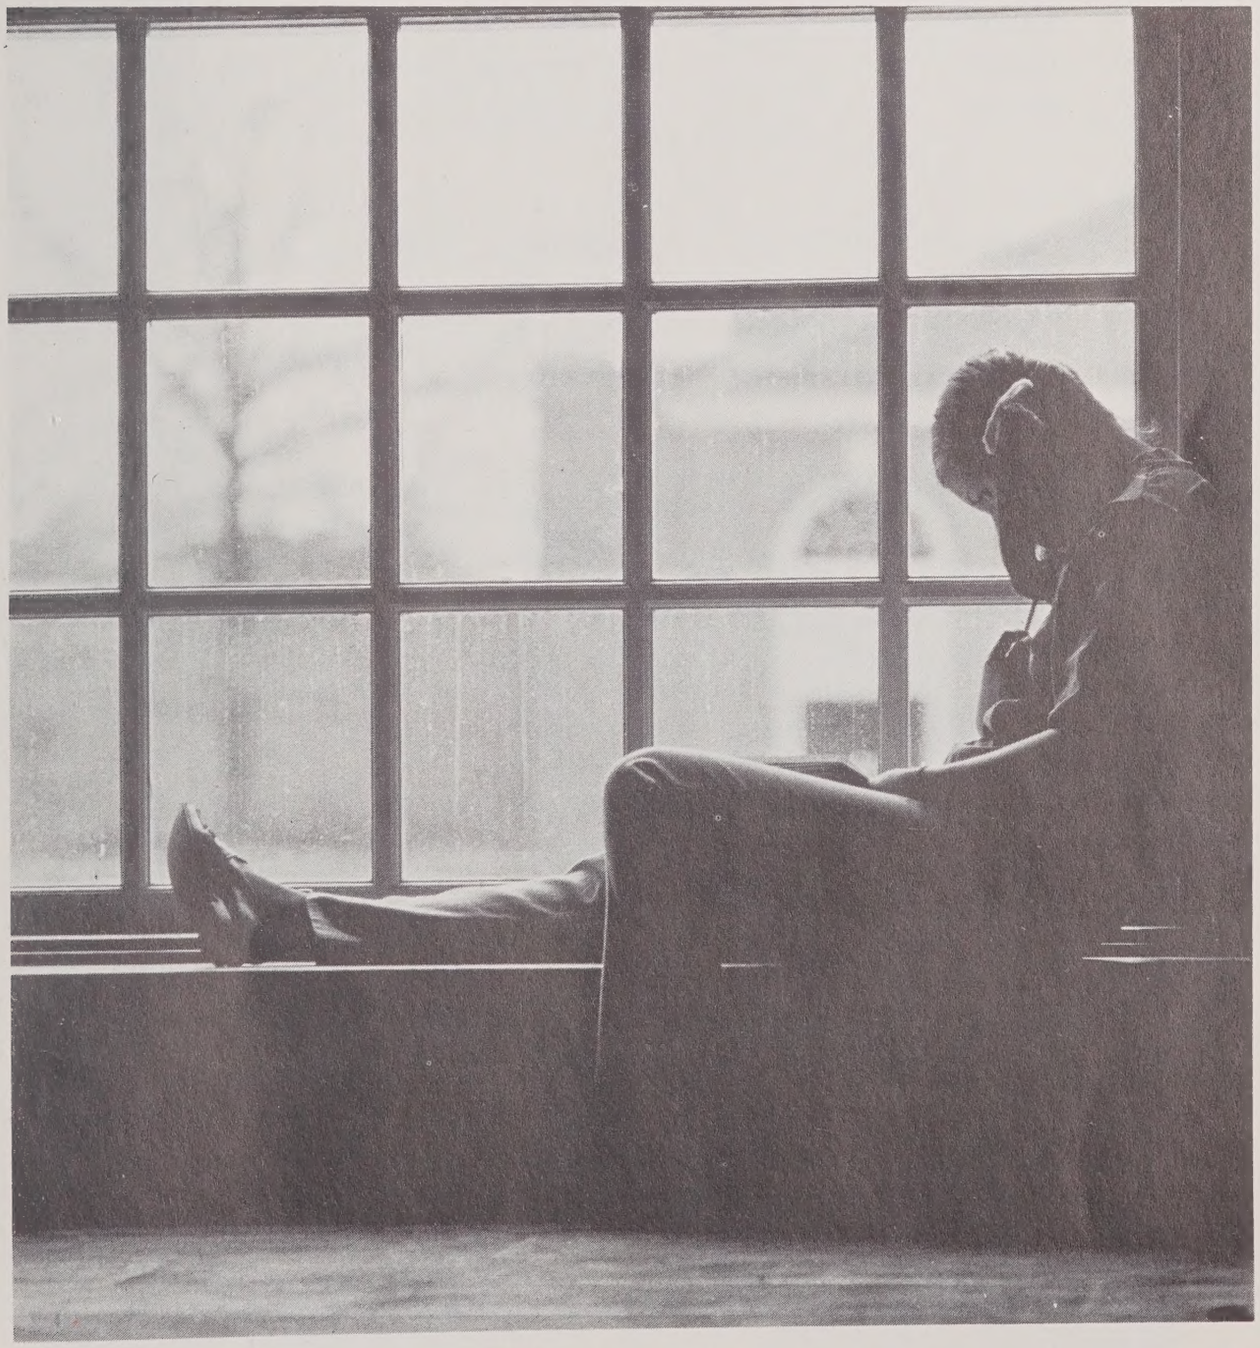
PROLOGUE

"Let every one mind his own business and endeavor to be what he was made. No face which we can give to a matter will stead us so well at last as the truth. This alone wears well. Say what you have to say, not what you ought. Any truth is better than make-believe. However mean your life is, meet it and live it; do not shun it.

"If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music which he hears, however measured or far away." — Thoreau



Solitude is as needful to the imagination as society is wholesome to the character. — Lowell

THE ADMINISTRATION

The administrative policy of the University is a positive one — to help the student, wherever possible, to get the most out of his stay at Wake Forest, both in his academic training and in his development as a human being. The administrators, willing to listen to new ideas, problems, and complaints, attempt and succeed in maintaining an effective and working communication between the institution and students.

THE CAMPUS

The campus embraces about 411 acres of land and 17 buildings. Its magnolia trees, expansive lawns and carefully- planned design make the campus one of the most beautiful in the South.

The buildings are of modified Georgian architecture, constructed of Old Virginia brick and trimmed in granite and limestone. In addition to the university buildings, there are a President's home, ten faculty apartment buildings, 56 student apartments and a trailer camp for married students.

We know what we are, but we know not what we may be. —Shakespeare

WINSTON-SALEM AREA

Winston-Salem is located in Piedmont North Carolina, in the fastest growing area in the eastern United States. In 1959, and again in 1964, Winston-Salem received the great honor of being named an All American City, reflecting the city's long-time record of progress and continued prosperity.

The origin of the city can be traced to the early 1750's, when the Moravians followed the colonial road from Pennsylvania and established a community in Salem. About 134,000 people live in the industrial combined towns of Winston and Salem. There has been a healthy student-citizen relationship that is strengthened by the community relations committee and an increase of mutual appreciation since the University moved to Winston-Salem in 1956. The governmental and political affairs of the city interest the members of the faculty, student body, and administration, who take an active part in both. This interest has caused the people of the city to respond with constant aid to the development and cultural programs of the University.

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco, the main industry of Winston-Salem, has over 9,000 people in its employment. The company now operates the most modern cigarette factory in the world, which can be toured at almost any time. The city also houses the largest bank in the southeast, the largest producer of seamless hose, and the largest regional airlines in the nation.

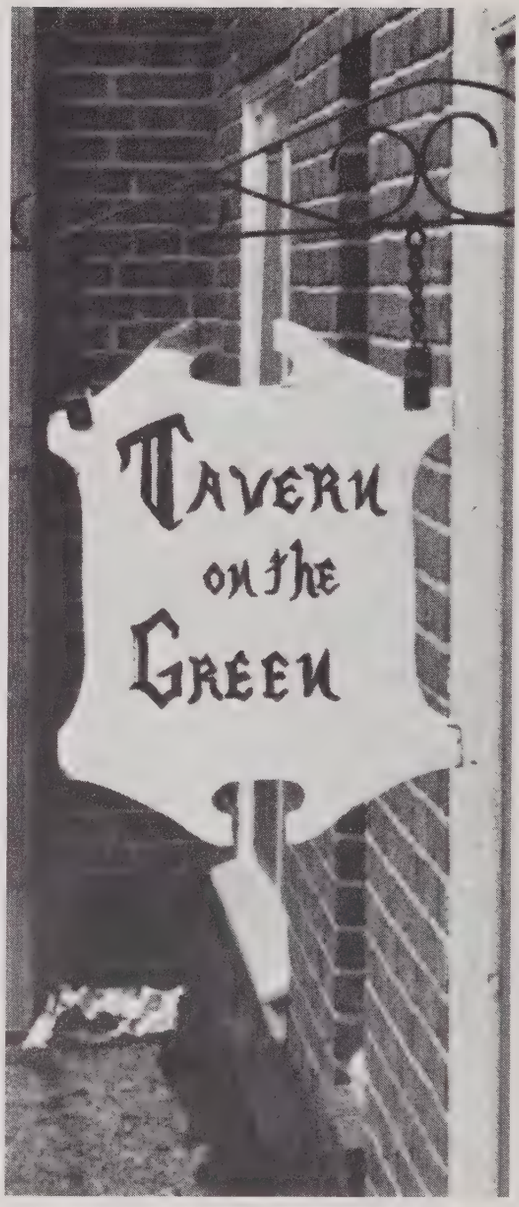
The student may find abundant sources and opportunities for cultural and recreational activities. The University sponsors a concert-lecture series; and in addition, students may attend programs of the Civic Music Association, the Little Theater, the Winston-Salem Symphony, the Winston-Salem Singers' Guild, and the Chamber Music Society.

Student golfers may take advantage of two public courses, Hillcrest Golf Club and Reynolds Park. Other golf facilities for students are Grandview, Wedgewood, Wilshire, Tanglewood Park and Winston Lake. The area surrounding the city offers other opportunities for recreation. One may find swimming, golf, horseback riding, fishing, picnicking, and games at "Tanglewood," the William and Kate B. Reynolds Memorial Park. Only 47 miles from the campus the student can find the beautiful and scenic Blue Ridge Parkway, which attracts many students during the fall and spring months. Near these attractive ranges are located the Hanging Rock State Park, 30 miles north of the city, and Pilot Mountain Park, 25 miles northwest of Winston-Salem.



One of the finest examples of restored colonial life in the United States is Old Salem, a special attraction in the city. Salem College, a distinguished four-year college for women, is located in Old Salem. Salem Academy, founded in 1772, is the oldest preparatory school for girls in the South. Easter and Christmas services of the Moravian Church are attended by people from all over the nation, in honor of the heritage of the city. Winston-Salem's third college is Winston-Salem State University, a state school.

In addition, Winston-Salem offers many opportunities for community service for students. The Baptist Student Union sponsors a mission house on Patterson Avenue, and many students work in the Experiment in Self-Reliance or one of its agencies. Winston-Salem has formed an Urban Coalition to fight the problems of poverty, and students have pledged their active, working support to the betterment of our University community at large.

Relaxation and light entertainment are also provided for by Winston-Salem. Besides several drive-in theatres, there are two downtown theatres and new theatres at the Parkway Plaza, Reynolda Manor, and Thruway shopping centers. The student will find miniature golf courses and bowling alleys close by. The City Recreation Department operates 25 recreation centers and four parks, with facilities for all types of activities. Winston-Salem also has a wide variety of fine restaurants.

REYNOLDA GARDENS

Breathtakingly beautiful Reynolda Gardens is one of the most magnificent spots in the area. Each spring thousands flock to admire the weeping Japanese cherry trees in the glory of full bloom.

Through the year, the winding paths and lakeside slopes of the Gardens are favorite spots for study in the sun, leisurely strolls, and student marriages. An enchanting path leads to the Garden from the main campus at the biology building on the west side.

The woods are lovely, dark, and deep, but I have promises to keep and miles to go before I sleep. —Robert Frost

The Gardens became one of the University's most treasured heritages in 1958 when they were presented to Wake Forest by the Mary Reynolds Babcock Foundation and Charles H. Babcock, "to enhance educational facilities . . . and the cultural service which Wake Forest is now rendering to the community and to the state."

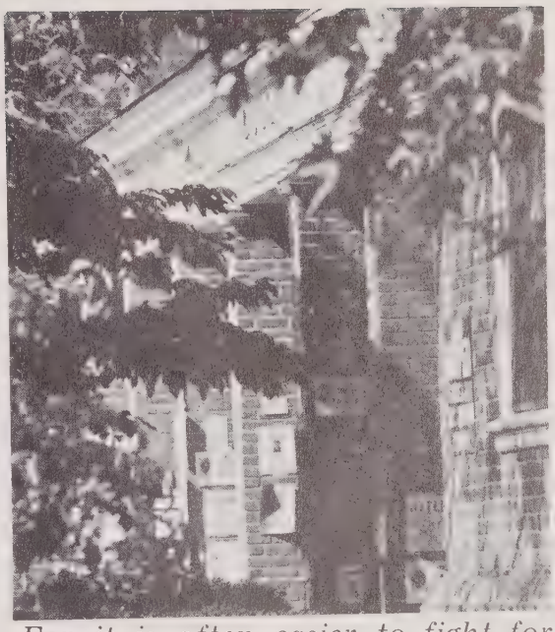
With all her glorious traditions and physical beauty, it is in the final analysis the people of Wake Forest that make her what she is. And in these people, there are two factors which are always foremost — a deep love of Wake Forest and a personal concern for each and every individual student.

Wake Forest has always been careful to stress quality rather than quantity, and her people reflect this emphasis.

ACTIVITIES

Hell is empty and all the devils are here. —James Harnden Davidson

CAMPUS POLITICS



For it is often easier to fight for principles than to live up to them.
—Adlai Stevenson

Politics is the science of government and at Wake Forest the direction of Student Government is closely tied to the political fortunes of the parties and personalities. A loose two-party system exists on the campus with the Better Politics on Campus (BPOC) and Student Action Movement (SAM) parties waging strong campaigns for class and student body offices.

Campaigning is usually vigorous, complete with nominating conventions, issue-oriented platforms, candidate debates and speeches, receptions, and door-to-door politicking. Last spring's elections were held in the wake of wide spread candidate apathy and as a result neither party was able to field a complete slate of candidates from within its own party. As a result, two members of SAM were nominated and endorsed by the BPOC and SAM did not field a slate for the "Big Four." It should be pointed out that despite a lack of candidates from which to choose, interest was high and the voter turnout was heavy.

While the BPOC captured a clear majority of the class offices, the elections for this fall are expected to be quite close when a record number of legislature seats will be filled on a living-unit basis.

Campus politics provide the student an opportunity to gain first-hand experience in practical politics. But more important, the improved political climate of Wake Forest University over the past few years has done much to bring the student a far larger voice in shaping Wake Forest University.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Student Government is established and operates under the Constitution of the Student Body and includes the Student Legislature, Honor Council, and the Men's Judicial Board. The 1970—1971 student body president is Ed Wooters, a senior from Goldsboro, N.C.; vice-president is Steve Harvey, a senior from Orchard Lake, Mich.; secretary is Beth Coleman, a senior from Elizabethton, Tenn.; and the treasurer is Mike Aiken, a senior from Greenville, N.C.

The possible re-introduction of the controversial "Student Responsibility Act" should spark a great deal of campus controversy as should some possible Honor Council reforms when the legislature convenes in late September.

Through membership on committees established by the Legislature and directed by the officers participation in student government is available to a large number of students.

STUDENT LEGISLATURE

The Student Legislature, the legislative arm of student government, will undergo a complete structural change following the 1970 spring elections. After much research and hard debate, the legislature in its first session under the new administration adopted a reorganization plan in which legislators would be chosen by living units rather than on a class basis. An overwhelming majority in a campus referendum approved this plan to bring the representatives closer to their constituency.

The legislative reorganization will replace the current legislative representatives elected at large. However, officers of the four classes — president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer — will remain as they are.

While the president is not a member of the legislature, his programs and goals are usually reflected in legislative action. In addition legislators initiate legislation according to their own perceptions of needs and according to the desires of their constituents. The real work of the legislature is referred immediately to one of the several committees for appropriate action. It is here that legislation is turned into reality. Committees such as Curriculum, Athletics, Student Facilities, Community Relations, University Development, and others have taken on new life and begun action in new areas of concern and interest.

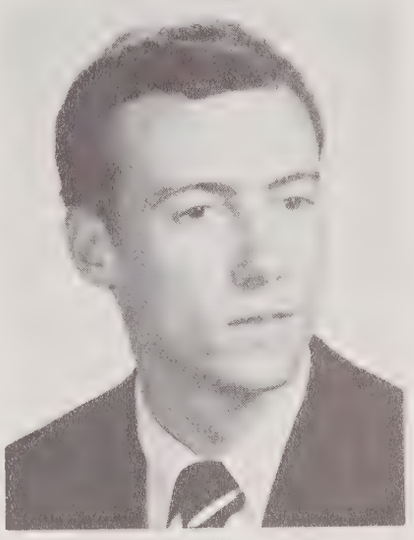
The vice-president acts as liaison between the president and the committee chairmen who are appointed by the President and may be from outside the Legislature. Reports on current issues and Student Legislature action are available in the Old Gold and Black.

The Student Legislature meets every first and third Wednesday night in the legislative chambers, room 230, Reynolda Hall. Members of the student body are invited and are welcome to attend all legislative meetings.

MJB – HONOR COUNCIL – WGA

(Refer to Rules and Regulations for additional information)

The Men's Judicial Board is essentially a student—faculty committee whose purpose is to investigate and act upon conduct violations. The board is composed of six male students and six members of the faculty. The Judicial Board is foremost a court of justice; however, it has also become a policy-initiating body that insures the rights and privileges of all within the confines of the University. Sam Currin, a senior from Oxford, N.C., is again the chairman of the MJB.



Sam Currin

Sam Lewis

The judicial wing of the student government is the Honor Council. When a student is charged for having committed an honor code offense, he is then brought to trail before the council. Acting as a court, the council of eight men and eight women carefully weigh the evidence and decide on the penalty. The decision is usually final and only in extreme instances is a case reviewed by the faculty. The chairman of the Honor Council for 1970-1971 is Sam Lewis, a senior from Burlington, N.C.

For the undergraduate resident women and the day students the Women's Government Association is the governing body in matters of social regulations. The WGA encompasses almost every area of campus life for the coed. It is a growing organization designed to foster a sense of unity among the women of Wake Forest in becoming an integral part of the University. The president of the WGA for the 1970-1971 year is Diane (Peach) Little, a senior from Marietta, Ga.

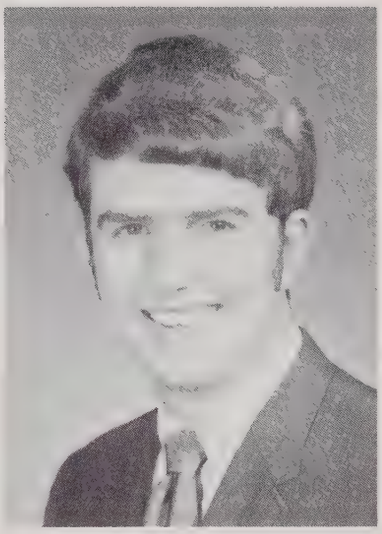
THE COLLEGE UNION



Bill McCollum
President

The College Union is responsible for the coordination of campus social, cultural, and recreational activities. Activities sponsored by the College Union include concerts, dances, films, lectures, art exhibits, ski trips, and trips to New York and the Caribbean.

Under the direction of the College Union, most of Reynolda Hall has been converted into a student center during the last two years. Students can now relax in the many lounges and listening rooms or watch color television in the East Lounge. Also, in the East Lounge, students have access to bridge tables, pool tables, and an informal lounging area. Other areas in the building include offices and workrooms for campus student organizations, meeting rooms, and a ballroom for dances. A second television room will be available this year.

In recent years, the Major Functions Committee has brought to the campus such groups as Simon and Garfunkel, Smokey Robinson and the Miracles, The Rascals, The Lettermen, Sam and Dave, The Association, Dionne Warwick, and Ferrante and Teicher. Just this past year, the students were able to hear The Classics IV, Fifth Dimension, Iron Butterfly, Guess Who, and Gary Puckett and the Union Gap. Booked tentatively for next fall are The Three Dog Night, Tripoli Trinidad Steel Band, and The Friends of Distinction.

Last year the CU film program was rated number one in the nation and this year will bring to the campus such popular films as "Lion in Winter," "Tom Jones," "Bonnie and Clyde," "The Night They Raided Minsky's," "How To Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," "Psycho," "Alice's Restaurant," "The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter," "Loves of Isadora," and "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid."

Among the foreign and American classic films to be shown are "Lord of the Flies," "Magnificent Ambersons," "The Heiress," "Little Shop," "She Done Him Wrong," "Casablanca, "Red Badge of Courage," "East of Eden," "The Matchmaker," "Country Girl," "Million Dollar Legs," "Seventh Seal," and "The Innocents."

Lecturers booked include Floyd McKissick, Betty Friedan, Sen. Birch Bayh, and Abbie Hoffman.

MEN'S RESIDENCE COUNCIL

Six years ago, the seeds of what was to become one of the most dynamic, purposeful organizations of the Wake Forest campus were planted by a handful of dissatisfied independents. Today, the Wake Forest house system embodied in the Men's Residence Council stands ready to offer the independent male student a program of "Total Education."

The "Total Education" concept of the MRC seeks to offer a well-rounded program of athletic, academic, and social activities to each member. This three-headed emphasis is supported by the belief that a college education is more than just classes three times a day for four years and a piece of sheepskin. The MRC seeks to relate each of these areas in producing a totally educated Wake Forest man unique among the mass of today's graduates.

Doug Miller
MRC President

Each of the four residence houses on campus — Davis House, Kitchin House, Poteat House, and Taylor House — plans and executes its own program of seminars, lectures, intramural athletic games, combo parties, and many other events unique to each house. In addition, all of the houses take part in MRC activities such as the annual Red Garter Dance, Fine Arts Week, Spring Golf Classic, Big Four Field Day, and Beach Weekends. The Men's Residence Council is comprised of representatives from all four residence houses along with four elected officers. The council serves as a coordinator for activities among the houses as well as an integrator of house policies and finances. It also serves as the houses' representative in both public and collegiate interaction.

The MRC's house system is looking forward to another great year of growth, fun, fellowship, involvement, and learning. These goals will be met in the challenge of "Total Education" as the Men's Residence Council finds itself an integral part of the ever growing Wake Forest community.

SOCIETIES

The Inter-Society Council co-ordinates the activities and acts as a spokesman and a sounding board for the societies. It is composed of the presidents and one representative from each class in the society. The six women's societies are: Laurels, SOPH's, Strings, Les Soeurs, Thymes, and Fideles. The president of the ISC for 1970—1971 is Kitty Peters, a senior from Coral Gables, Fla.

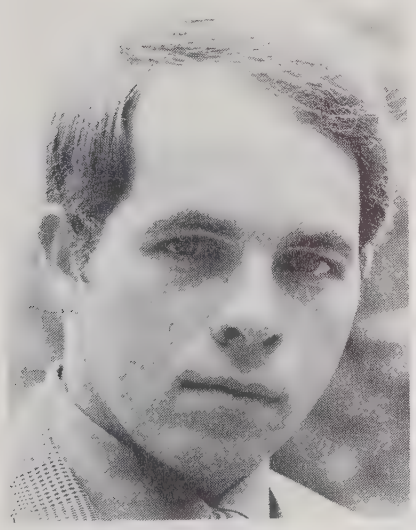
SOCIAL FRATERNITIES

As a freshman, one may be a bit confused at first trying to remember which Greek letters represent each of the ten social fraternities on campus. Gradually, the names and faces will fall into place, and new students will have the opportunity to affiliate with the fraternity of their choice.

With the deferred rush rules, new students have the opportunity of viewing fraternities from afar for one semester; thus one is able to decide objectively which brotherhood best suits his needs and personality. Freshmen may pledge a fraternity second semester only after they have attained the required minimum grade average and have received a bid from a fraternity. Transfer students may participate in rush first semester. Pledging is an important step in one's college career and should be taken only after serious and careful consideration.

Wake Forest's social fraternities not only provide entertainment and parties but also encourage academic excellence and participate in a well-rounded intramural program. A student makes close friendships and finds a place for himself within a brotherhood.



John Currin
IFC President

The central governing body of all social fraternities on campus is the Interfraternity Council. Composed of representatives from each brotherhood, it formulates the rules for rushing, pledging and initiation. The IFC sponsors as its main social events of the year Mid-Winters and Greek Week. The president of the IFC for 1970-1971 is John Currin, a senior from Graham, N.C.

An Open Letter to All Freshman Men:

You may not realize it now, but sooner or later you will be faced with the question, "Should I join a social fraternity?" Allow me to help you make a decision by offering four basic concepts of fraternity life.

First, the fraternity occupies a dynamic and vital position in the Wake Forest community. Fraternity men are well represented in positions of campus leadership, interscholastic athletics, and academic honors.

Each of us, as college students, recognizes our academic responsibility which cannot be denied. The fraternity offers a medium for academic achievement not often found elsewhere. There exists a strong sense of mutual cooperation for the attainment of scholastic success. During pledgeship, a fraternity man begins to realize that academic achievement is an integral measure of his conscientiousness. He also realizes that certain scholastic standards must be met in order to enter a fraternity and to remain enrolled at Wake Forest.

Thirdly, we must not lose sight of the fact that a fraternity is a social organization. It brings a group of men together for the benefit of all. Fraternity instills a code of conduct and offers experiences which are invaluable to a complete social education. Likewise, a fraternity provides the good fellowship and lasting memories of a meaningful college career.

The last aspect of fraternal life is, to me, the most important: brotherhood. Brotherhood is a rather intangible term, but it rests upon concrete principles. It teaches a man to put the good of the whole before his own desires and closely parallels the Golden Rule. Brotherhood builds moral character and sincerity towards people both inside and outside the fraternity. It is the feeling of satisfaction that is derived from doing something for someone else without expecting a reward. Brotherhood leads to the acquiring of a sense of responsibility and leadership. The fraternity man soon finds himself assuming the responsibility for maintaining spirit and the general well-being of the house. His brothers soon realize his qualities of leadership. Fraternity men have the responsibilities of self-government and management of a corporation whose assets and expenditures total thousands of dollars. They carry this sense of responsibility, management, and leadership throughout their lives. Finally, brotherhood provides the medium for free exchange of ideas and impressions. It forms the tightest bond between individuals. Earnest Howard Crosby offers the best revelation of the deep meaning of brotherhood:

> No one could tell me where my soul might be.
> I searched for God but He eluded me;
> I sought my brother and found all three.

Fraternities have a lot to offer to the young man who is willing to put forth the necessary effort. Each of us has our own inherent needs for fellowship and social relationships. I cannot answer your question of whether or not to become associated with a fraternity. I can only extend to you the invitation to observe the fraternities at Wake Forest in action, talk with the brothers, note the achievements of fraternity men, and finally, make your decision. Let me urge you to make more

PUBLICATIONS

On the second floor of Reynolda Hall is the heart of the student activities at Wake Forest — Pub (for publications) Row. At one end of the hall are the student government offices; at the other, the campus radio station; and down the side are the offices of the three student publications: a yearbook, a newspaper, and a literary magazine. This hall provides the eyes, ears and voice of the Wake Forest student body. Its role in the life of the college is a significant one, for it is the breeding ground of student ideas and the headquarters for student work.

The Wake Forest publications are governed by a Publications Board, the objectives of which are to promote interest in journalism and college literary activities, and to build and raise the standards of the college publications. The membership of the board consists of a faculty board, composed of faculty advisers, and a student board, composed of each publication staff's editor and business manager. All students are invited to participate in publications.

Pam Jones
Howler

The Howler

The Howler, the University yearbook, contains a thorough word-and-picture account of the year's activities and is, therefore, a treasured record of Wake Forest for the future. Sections on studies, groups, special highlights, individuals, the community, and the world combine to tell the complete story of University life.

The Howler has appeared every year since 1903, and it has received an All-American rating many times from the Associated Collegiate Press.

Pam Jones, a senior from Galax, Va., will be this year's Howler editor.

Steve Baker
The Student

The Student

The University literary magazine is The Student, an outlet for the creative ability of any Deacon. Included in the magazine are short stories, poems, art, book reviews, and news and photo features.

The magazine, which was founded in 1882, is the oldest University publication. It is published five times throughout the school year. The content of each volume is manuscripts which are submitted by students and are accepted on the basis of individual merit.

This year's editor will be Steve Baker, a senior from Salisbury, Md.

Old Gold and Black

Kirk Jonas
OG&B

Old Gold and Black, the All-American student newspaper, covers the campus like the magnolias. News of campus activities and items of community, state, and national scope which may affect the University, in addition to feature articles, editorials, columns, and advertising, keep the student up to date with campus affairs. Besides indorming the students,Old Gold and Black is the principal means by which alumni and parents can keep in touch with campus life.

Kirk Jonas, a senior from Richmond, Va., will be this year's editor.

DEBATING

Dr. Merwyn Hayes, the director of the Wake Forest Debate Team, stresses that debating is open to any student who is interested in attending the meetings and becoming a contributing member of the debate squad. There are no tryouts or eliminations.

The Wake Forest Debate Union is an outgrowth of the old Euzelian and Philomathesian Literary Societies and as such is one of the oldest and most prestigious student organizations on campus.

Long recognized as a national power, the Wake Forest Debate Team will travel over 30,000 miles and participate in nearly 50 tournaments throughout the country in the coming academic year. Always a strong competitor, last year's debate squads won a number of tournaments and placed in many more, often against the leading universities and outstanding debate "powers" in the country. In addition, Wake Forest is the sponsor of two of the country's finest intercollegiate debate tournaments, the novice tournament held in October and the Dixie Classic Varsity tournament usually held in December. Numerous high school forensic activities are also held on campus throughout the year.

The president of the Wake Forest University Debate Team for 1970—1971 is John Cooper, a junior from Kingsport, Tenn.

CHALLENGE

Challenge is a symposium-convention sponsered every two years by the students of Wake Forest. Designed to educate and enlighten students in contemporary American problems, each program is based on a specific topic. Previous subjects have been "The Emerging Negro," "The Implication of Prosperity," and "The Urban Crisis." This year's program, to be held April 18-20, is entitled "The Challenge of Survival: Not Man Apart." The three-day format includes noted speakers such as Senator Edmund Muskie, who previously spoke at Challenge 1969, seminars, discussion groups, lectures by campus professors, films, a concert, a Challenge magazine, and follow-up activities in the community. All students and members of the Wake Forest Community are invited to participate; any and all support is welcome. The Challenge office is located on Pub Row in Reynolda Hall. Heading Challenge 1971 is Chris Barnes, a senior from Cincinnati, Ohio.

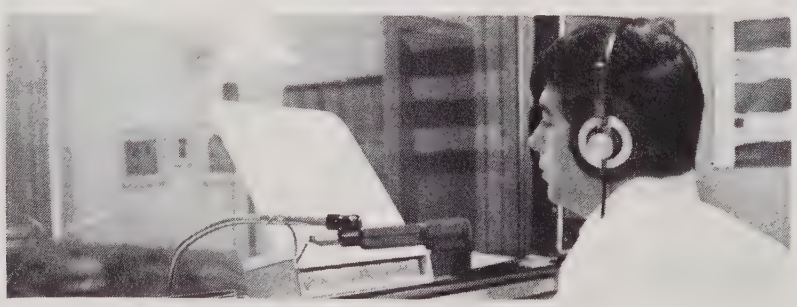
WFDD–FM

WFDD—FM, "The Voice of Wake Forest," broadcasts throughout Piedmont North Carolina and Southwest Virginia by means of FM (88.5 MC) and also can be heard in the dormitories at 650 KC on AM receivers.

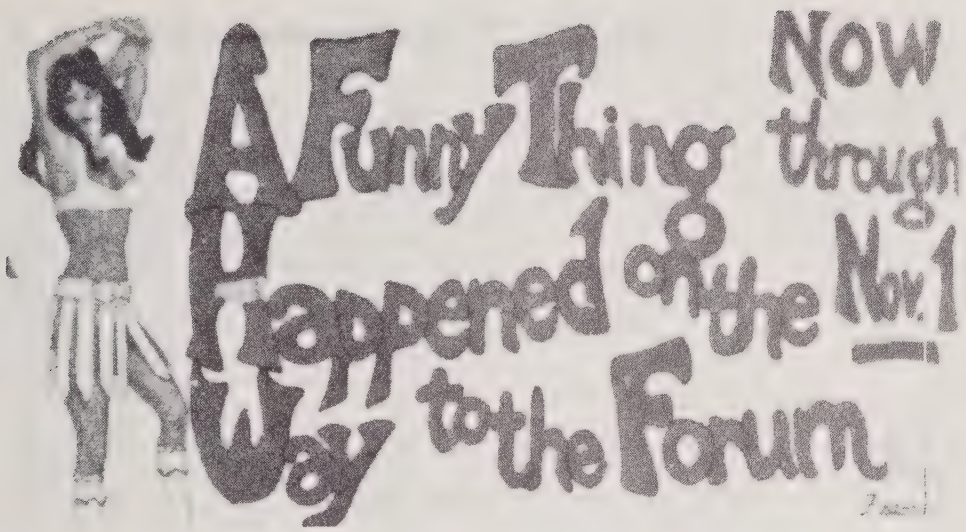
The 36,000 watt station will have three full-time employees this year, and a number of students also assist with operation of the station. WFDD is a member of National Educational Radio and broadcasts many classical music and public affairs programs. It is on the air year-round from 2 p.m. until midnight Monday through Friday and from 11 a.m. until midnight on Sunday. Students interested in participating on the staff of WFDD should contact Dr. J.C. Burroughs at the radio station in Reynolda Hall.



Take deeds away. Play music please. —J. P. Donleavy

CHAMBER MUSIC SOCIETY

The University is the home of the Wake Forest Chamber Music Society, composed of students, faculty, and townspeople. Each year the society presents four outstanding recitals. Two of these outstanding performances will be presented on the campus of Wake Forest University. The N.C. School of the Arts and Salem College will be hosts to the other two performances. This year the society will present its traditionally excellent series of distinguished performers. All interested persons may obtain season memberships, or if preferred, tickets for each concert are available at the door. For any other information about the individual performances, write Box 7266, Reynolda Station.

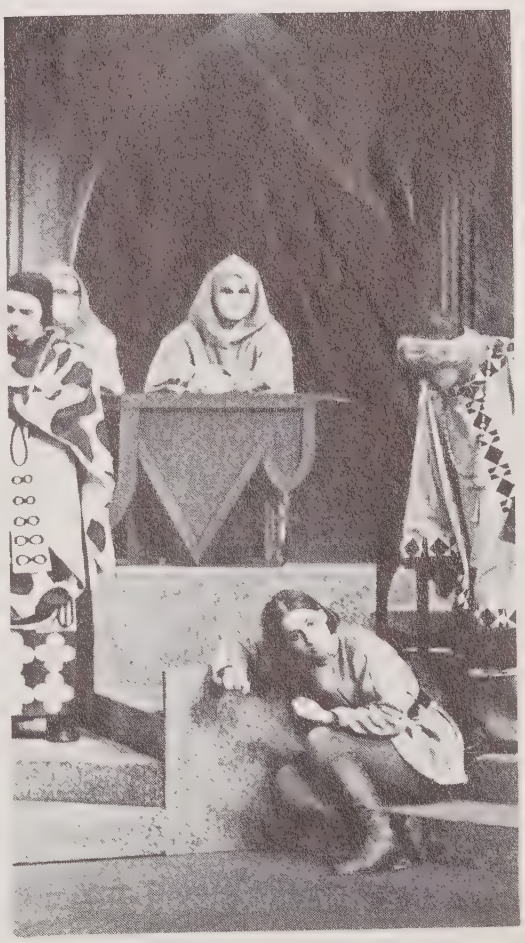


THE UNIVERSITY THEATRE

The University Theatre offers numerous opportunities to all students. They may participate as actors, directors, costumers, choreographers, make-up artists, carpenters, electricians, and spectators.

In the library, the seventh and eighth levels provide space for two theatres: Studio 7 west, the experimental theatre, and Studio 8 east, the proscenium theatre. During the year, the dramatic program comprises four major plays, reader's theatre, and laboratory theatre. Upon completion, the theatre's activities culminate with the Annual Theatre Awards Banquet, at which outstanding performers are inducted into the National Collegiate Players.

Dr. Harold C. Tedford will direct the activities of the University Theatre.



Some see things as they are and ask why; I dream of things that never were and ask why not.

THE ARTISTS SERIES

World-renowned performers will visit Wake Forest University this year as the Artists Series, headed by Dr. Charles Allen, continues to bring a wide variety of the finest instrumentalists and vocalists to the campus. Masters in their respective fields will thrill audiences with their music, ranging from classical to light jazz. Students and students' wives are admitted upon presentation of their ID cards, for money allotments for the program come from student activity fees and endowment funds.

MUSICAL ACTIVITIES

Those students who express a desire to participate in musical activities at Wake Forest find a variety of musical organizations which provide an outlet for individual and group performance in vocal and instrumental fields.

In the instrumental field, the Marching Deacons and the lively majorettes add to the spirit and atmosphere of autumn football games. Under the direction of Dr. Calvin Huber, director of instrumental music, the Concert Band presents various concerts in Wait Chapel and outdoors in the spring. In addition, the Department of Music has a stage band with fifteen to twenty members and a Little Symphony.

Throughout the year, students are greeted by the strains of anthems performed by the Chapel Choir during special chapel services and the annual Christmas Vesper Service. The Touring Choir performs throughout North Carolina and other states and joins with the Chapel Choir for a spring concert of special music under the direction of Dr. Thane McDonald.

RELIGIOUS ACTIVITIES

The religious program seeks to clarify the Christian style of life and indicate its cohesion with academic excellence. The University Chaplain and other campus ministers representing the major denominations coordinate an interdemoninational program which includes the following: pre-school retreat, student faculty colloquium, a New York and an Atlanta seminar, an attic coffee house (library), a residential house in the inner city, a weekly discussion group, a weekly radio program, service projects, and certain worship services such as the Moravian Love Feast.

Many of these activities are undertaken jointly with Salem College and Winston-Salem State University because some of the campus ministers have responsibilities at these institutions. All of the chaplains seek to provide a personal ministry to students and faculty. There are many local churches which seek to provide worship and service opportunities for students, and information about these churches will be made available to entering students.

There is also a church located on campus. The Wake Forest Baptist Church, nourished in the Baptist tradition, is open in its membership to students, faculty, and townspeople of all denominations. This church has embraced and contributed to the growing ecumenism of the University, and its minister shares in the work of the other campus ministers in hospital visitation and work in the coffee house. Wingate Hall houses the pastor's office (Room 110) as well as the University Chaplain's office (Room 105). The other campus ministers have offices in the library (rooms 104 and 105). Two Lutheran ministers and a Catholic priest participate part-time in this program.

CONVOCATIONS, CHAPEL, AND LECTURE SERIES

At certain times during the year such as at the opening of school, Founders' Day, and in the spring, convocations are held which all students are expected to attend. The President may call other University convocations at his discretion. The Tuesday Chapel Series consists of worship services in Davis Chapel incorporating traditional and non-traditional approaches to the worship of God. The Thursday Lecture Series consists of presentations by members of the faculty on various topics. These are held in DeTamble Auditorium. The Tuesday and Thursday programs are at 10:00 a.m. Students are urged to take advantage of these opportunities.

OTHER ORGANIZATIONS

A large number of societies, groups, and clubs cover the range of student interests and activities at Wake Forest. Membership in these organizations is through scholarship or a desire to intensify a particular interest that the student may have.

Honorary societies are Phi Beta Kappa, national scholarship society; Omicron Delta Kappa, national men's leadership society; Mortar Board, women's leadership society; and honoraries in the following fields: pre-med, biology, chemistry, mathematics, German, Romance languages, history, Latin, speech, religious activities, physical education, military, theatre, and debate.

Christianity is a battle — not a dream. —Wendell Phillips

Other organizations with which a student may choose to affiliate are Circle K, Young Republicans, Young Democrats, business and teachers' organizations, the English Club, the International Relations Club, the Monogram Club, cheerleaders, and the newly formed Afro-American Society.

Peace Corps

Mark Reece, Dean of Men, is the Peace Corps' liaison representative on the campus. Any student who is interested in this organization can secure descriptive literature and information from Dean Reece in 203 Reynolda Hall.

Navy ROC Program

The United States Navy offers a Reserve Officer Candidate (ROC) Program whereby a Wake Forest student may complete his military requirements for commission as Ensign in the United States Navy Reserve by attending weekly drills at the Winston-Salem Naval Reserve Training Center, 930 Brookstown Avenue, and by attending the ROC schools during the summer following his sophomore and junior years. A commission is granted on graduation from Wake Forest University. Further information is available through the Commanding Officer of the Training Center or Dr. Carlton Mitchell of the Wake Forest faculty.

The ROTC Program

A senior unit of the United States Army Reserve Officers Training Corps was established at Wake Forest University in 1951. The general objective of the program is to produce officers who possess the leadership and scholastic attributes to progressive and continual development as Reserve Officers in the Army of the United States.

The ROTC program is divided into a basic course (freshmen and sophomores) and an advanced course (juniors and seniors). Uniforms, military textbooks and equipment are provided students by the United States Government. Students selected for the advanced course receive fifty dollars per month, which totals about twelve hundred dollars for the entire course. Several scholarships available to advanced students include tuition, books, laboratory fees as well as fifty dollars per month subsistence allotment.

A student enrolled in ROTC who meets prescribed requirements may receive deferment from selective service. After successful completion of the ROTC program and receipt of a baccalaureate degree, students are commissioned second lieutenants in the U. S. Army Reserve. If selected as a Distinguished Military Graduate, a student may be appointed a second lieutenant in the Regular Army.

Information concerning student deferments will be provided at registration and this is the appropriate time for you to apply for deferment if you wish. Information concerning other ways of meeting the Selective Service obligation may be obtained from the offices of the Student Government, the Chaplain, or the Dean of Men.

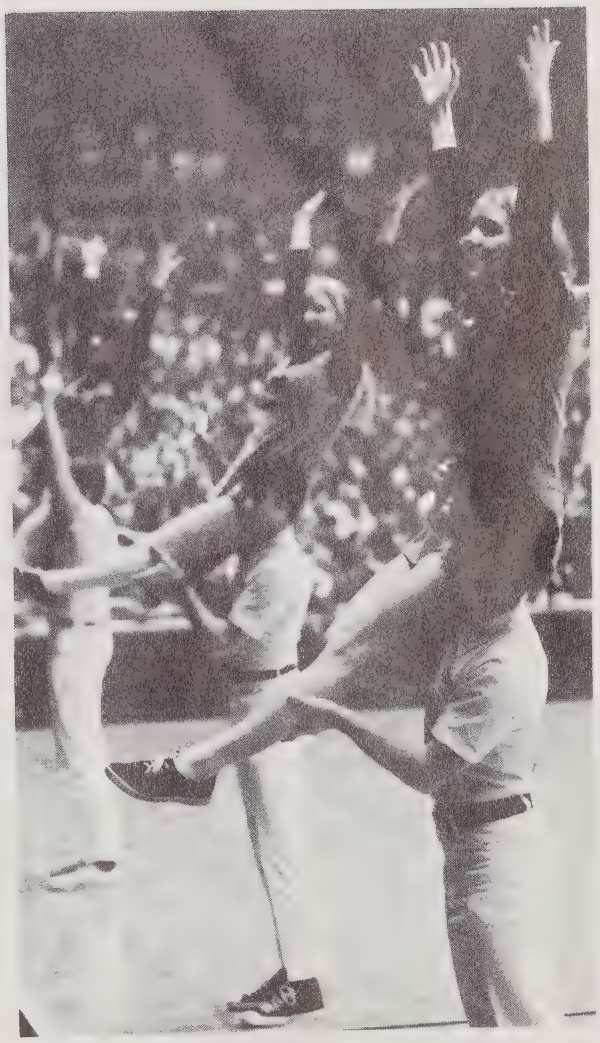
THE UNIVERSITY SONGS

DEAR OLD WAKE FOREST

(The Alma Mater)



Dear old Wake Forest!
Thine is a noble name;
Thine is a glorious fame,
Constant and true.
We give thee of our praise,
Adore thine ancient days,
Sing thee our humble lays,
Mother, so dear.

Dear old Wake Forest!
Mystic thy name to cheer;
Be thou our guardian near,
Fore'er and aye.
We bow before thy shrine,
Thy brow with bays entwine,
All honor now be thine,
Mother, today.

OH, HERE'S TO WAKE FOREST

(The Fight Song)

Oh, here's to Wake Forest, a glass of the finest
Red, ruddy Rhenish filled up to the brim!
Her sons they are many, unrivaled by any;
With hearts o'erflowing we will sing her hymn.

(Chorus)

Rah, Rah, Wake Forest, Rah!
Old Alma Mater's sons we are;
We'll herald her story and die for her glory,
Old Gold and Black is ever waving high.

As frosh we adore her; as sophs we explore her,
And carve our names upon her ancient walls;
As juniors patrol her; as seniors extol her,
And weep to leave fore'er her sacred halls.

Though fortune forsake us and fate o'ertake us,
We'll ne'er forget our dear old college days,
And o'er memory's treasure we'll drink without measure,
And sing fore'er our Alma Mater's praise.

SPORTS

Popular applause veers with the wind. — John Bright

INDIVIDUAL SPORTS

The University provides extensive athletic and recreational facilities and a faculty of trained supervisors to direct activities in various fields. Space and equipment are readily available to all students for recreational purposes.

For use within the program, the University maintains athletic fields, tennis courts, and a recreation building which includes a swimming pool, handball and squash courts, rhythm studio, arts and crafts room, recreational area, corrective rooms, a gymnastics and wrestling room, and a women's gym, a varsity basketball gym and two men's intramural gyms.

Two semesters of physical education are basic course requirements for graduation. A wide variety of courses are offered to fill these requirements as well as elective hours.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

The Department of Physical Education provides a varied intramural sports program that appeals to the interest of several hundred Wake Forest students every year.

Intramural sports include touch football, basketball, wrestling, golf, and tennis (both fall and spring), volleyball, handball, table tennis, badminton, horseshoes and softball for the men under the direction of Mr. John Clougherty. A similar program is available for women through the sponsorship of the Woman's Recreation Association. Individual awards and trophies are based on points which coeds may accumulate by participating in various activities and tournaments.

Competition in team sports is on the basis of fraternity or society and house teams. Any individual or group of individuals may organize teams and enter competition in any sport. Individual sports are run on a single-elimination basis, and everyone is eligible to enter. Trophies are awarded to individual and team winners in every sport.

RECREATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

A Physical Education Majors' Club is composed of all women who are majoring in physical education and those who are interested in it as a profession. The honorary men's fraternity in the field of physical education is Phi Epsilon Kappa.

Maritimer Club

A club to promote interest in water ballet, synchronized swimming, and aquatic arts. Any Wake Forest coed may join. They present one water show each year, and the club meets each Thursday night at 6:15 in the pool area. Mr. Leo Ellison, assistant physical education professor and coach of swimming, is the sponsor.

Orchesis Club

(Modern dance) Any Wake Forest coed may join. Two dance concerts per year are presented. Meet weekly for practice. Purpose is to promote interest in the modern dance as an art.

Recently several women's competitive teams have been organized for field hockey, tennis and golf. A friendly rivalry has developed between the coeds and the Salem and Winston-Salem girls.

A gymnastics club operates under the auspices of the Department of Physical Education.

INTERCOLLEGIATE SPORTS

In intercollegiate sports the University is a member of the Atlantic Coast Conference, one of the finest athletic circuits in the nation. Wake Forest teams are better known to the spectators as the Demon Deacons.

The year-round varsity sports schedule includes football , basketball, baseball, track, swimming, cross country, tennis, and golf. Freshman teams have a full schedule in all the intercollegiate sports.

Other schools that are members of the ACC are Duke, the University of North Carolina, N. C. State, Clemson, and the Universities of South Carolina, Virginia, and Maryland.

Deacon footballers are playing home games at the University's new Groves Stadium near the campus. Home baseball games are played at the Ernie Shore field and the basketball games are played in the Winston-Salem Memorial Coliseum near the campus. Tennis, track, and swimming facilities are located on campus.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

Student Responsibility

Wake Forest University endorses as a basic principle of University life the concept of responsible student freedom which carries with it the recognition by each student of the rights and obligations of other members of the University community. The University encourages students to conduct themselves as mature men and women and invites them to participate in the formulation of rules and to assume major responsibility in student judicial decisions. At the same time all participants in University life must remember that, by the Charter of the University, the Board of Trustees is ultimately responsible for the school and for its operation and that therefore the University is not, legally, a political democracy operated with the consent of the governed.

Wake Forest University also expects its students to abide by local, state and federal laws as well as the generally accepted moral standards of our society. Although the University's role is not to duplicate civil law enforcement or judicial action, it may exercise authority for reasons indigenous to its functioning as an educational institution.

Because it recognizes that students more readily achieve maturity when they are permitted to assume responsibility for their decisions, the University does not adopt an extremely protective attitude toward students of the kind that would imply a parent-child relationship. Within the academic community, certain regulations are necessary for the orderly operation of the University and for the well-being of its members. Furthermore, Wake Forest, in keeping with its historic concern for students individually and corporately, has a legitimate interest in their welfare in and out of class, on and off campus. Especially is the University concerned with those student actions that are inconsistent with their obligations as members of an educational community. When in the opinion of the University the conduct of a student at any place is reprehensible or detrimental to the best interests of that student, his fellow students, or the University, appropriate disciplinary action may be taken.

Thus the University is concerned with the conduct of students beyond the geographic bounds of the campus. For many reasons, however, including the obvious impossibility of controlling the off-campus behavior of students, it does not assume supervisory responsibility in their off-campus activities. Nor does the University seek or support special treatment for those of its students who may be apprehended for violation of law. It does regulate off-campus events of University-approved student organizations and insists that at these events and elsewhere reason and responsibility characterize student conduct. More important, it encourages in students a sense of propriety and an ideal of personal dignity that would guide them well in their choice of associates and in their general behavior.

STUDENT MARRIAGES

Except as herein provided, any student, man or woman, including day students, under twenty-one years of age, planning to continue his enrollment in the University after marriage must, prior to the marriage, have his parents or guardian notify the Dean of Women, in the case of women students, or the Dean of Men, in the case of men students. Notification shall be in writing and shall set forth the date and place of the marriage and the name of the person whom the student is marrying.

A student twenty-one years of age or older who plans to continue his enrollment in the University after marriage must, prior to the marriage, notify the Dean of Women, the in case of women students, or the Dean of Men, in the case of men students. Notification shall be in writing and shall set forth the date and place of the marriage and the name of the person whom the student is marrying.

A student who is married in the summer when he is not enrolled in the University for either the first or second summer session is not required to notify the Dean of Women or the Dean of Men prior to the marriage. However, immediately upon the return of the student to the University, he must notify the Dean of Men or the Dean of Women.

No woman student may continue living in the dormitory after marriage.

Any student who is married without proper notice will be given the opportunity to withdraw from the University immediately. Failure to withdraw will subject him to such disciplinary action as the Executive Committee of the faculty may prescribe, including immediate suspension from the University. Subsequent readmission after withdrawal or suspension will be at the discretion of the Executive Committee.

For the purposes of this requirement, a student is considered to be enrolled in the University continuously from the beginning until the end of the school year. By way of illustration and not by way of limitation, a student is considered to be enrolled in the University during holidays and during those periods between fall and spring semesters and between the first and second sessions of summer school.

IDENTIFICATION CARDS

At the September registration, all new students will be photographed for identification cards. These are permanent and are used for a student's entire stay at Wake Forest.

Students will be required to carry these cards and to exhibit them on proper request. They will be used for admission to athletic contests and the Artists Series, as well as for other purposes of identification.

When a student withdraws from the University, he must turn in his identification card to the Business Office. If a card is lost, a charge of $15.00 will be made for replacement.

MEN'S JUDICIAL BOARD

CHAIRMAN'S REMARKS

Wake Forest is fortunate to have an efficient judicial system that protects the rights and privileges of all within the University. To continue this tradition, it is important that students acquaint themselves with the university conduct regulations and be willing to abide by them. It is the duty of the Judicial Board to penalize those who do not act as responsible students or those who violate the rights of others. Yet, the Men's Judicial Board is just as concerned with correction as it is with punishment. In short, the Judicial Board strives to create a better life for the students of Wake Forest.

Sam Currin
Chairman

PHILOSOPHY OF THE MEN'S JUDICIAL BOARD

The Men's Judicial Board is essentially a student-faculty committee whose purpose is to investigate and act upon major conduct violations. The philosophy of the board incorporates the thoughts and ideas of students, faculty, and administration. Thus the decisions that the Judicial Board reaches are in the best interest of the University as a whole.

By its very nature the Men's Judicial Board has become a unifying factor among the students, faculty, and administration. Through the trial procedure, both the administration and faculty are confronted with some of the problems of student life. The student representatives on the board, entrusted with the responsibility of judging their peers, become aware of the responsibility of the administration and faculty in their concern for the students. Then too, the student body realizes that the board exists to insure the rights and privileges of all within the confines of the University. Through such interplay, the Men's Judicial Board is developing into more than a court of justice. It is becoming a policy-initiating body that seeks to define and to advance the standards of student life at Wake Forest University.

TRIAL PROCEDURE OF THE MEN'S JUDICIAL BOARD

I. Preliminary Conference

Violations of University conduct regulations may be reported by students, faculty, administration, campus police, house counselors, or other concerned or injured persons. Desirably, most offenses will be reported by students whose rights have been abused.

Typically, violations are reported to the Dean of Men who holds a preliminary fact-finding conference with the accused, and/or witnesses, in order to ascertain whether guilt has been established or admitted and whether the violation is serious enough for trial by the Judicial Board. The Dean of Men and the Chairman of the Judicial Board may appoint a sub-committee to aid in the preliminary fact-finding conference. In cases deemed sufficiently serious to be referred to the Judicial Board, further conferences may be held with the parties concerned in order to ascertain the facts involved. The accused shall be informed of his rights to counsel. From that time, the accused shall have twenty-four hours in which to formulate a defense. If counsel is sought, the counsel must be an undergraduate student at Wake Forest University who is in good standing himself, both academically and socially.

Without delay, the Dean of Men and the Chairman of the Judicial Board shall arrange a meeting of the board to be held at the earliest mutually convenient time following the twenty-four hour preparation period. As far as possible, board members will be notified by phone but will not be briefed on the case. Normally, the board will meet in Room 202 Reynolda Hall.

II. The Trial

Prior to appearing before the Judicial Board, the accused, his counsel, and witnesses for the defense shall wait in the outer office of the Dean of the College. Witnesses against the defense shall wait in the reception office of the Dean of Men.

The Chairman of the Judicial Board, who is a student, shall call the meeting to order. His duty is to conduct the trial in an orderly fashion and entertain motions and call for a vote. The chairman also has the right to vote.

The Dean of Men shall participate in the proceedings as necessary but shall not have a vote.

A student, elected from the membership of the board, shall serve as recording secretary. All written evidence shall be turned over to the Dean of Men after the trial. Proceedings may be taped at his own discretion or if requested by the board.

Before hearing the accused, the board shall hear a report from the Dean of Men setting forth the charges and evidence against the defendant. A brief statement of the charges and evidence together with duplicated copies of any written statements against the defendant may be prepared by the Dean of Men and provided to board members as seems convenient to expedite procedure. Information concerning the accused's background and academic and conduct record shall be provided to the board by the Dean of Men.

Following the preliminary report by the Dean of Men and remarks by the Chairman, the accused shall be called in before the board. He will be informed of the charges against him by the Chairman and will be asked to present his case. Witnesses for and against the accused shall be called in as needed. The Judicial Board will informally question the accused and the witness.

If evidence is incomplete, the board may elect a sub-committee to investigate the case further.

After the board has been satisfied concerning evidence in the case, the accused, his counsel, and all witnesses will be excused from the hearing. Board members shall discuss the case among themselves until a motion is heard, discussed, and acted on.

III. Reporting of the Decision

After the trial, the chairman shall have a private conference with the accused in which the verdict will be explained. In the event the defendant is convicted, the secretary shall be present to inform him that he and his parents will be forthwith notified in writing of the board action.

The convicted student will be told he will be given the privilege of informing his parents before the Dean's Office contacts them, provided the student acts promptly.

The secretary will prepare letters to be sent to the convicted student and his parents which will be mailed out over the signature of the chairman and the secretary.

Minutes of the proceedings will be kept by the secretary and kept on file in the office of the Dean of Men.

After each trial the secretary shall report the following to the school newspaper: the nature of the offense, the decision, and any penalty imposed. No names shall be divulged.

HONOR COUNCIL

THE THEORY BEHIND OUR SYSTEM

The honor system at Wake Forest is based upon the theory that every person can be trusted, and that it is not necessary for students to have proctors looking over their shoulders constantly. Since there are those who break the code, a group of students called the Honor Council is elected to enforce the honor system when necessary. The council is not the system, for the system consists of all students working together. Without student support there is no system.

It is not the purpose of the council to function as a proctor. Each student himself is on his honor not to violate the code.

We take a somewhat different approach from other schools in enforcing our honor system. For instance, at some institutions a student must leave school if convicted of an honor violation. We believe strongly in the second chance philosophy when possible. Our council takes upon itself the difficult task of determining intent or degree in arriving at a just penalty. In many cases a person is guilty and has clearly violated the honor code, but his violation does not deserve the serious penalty of expulsion.

HONOR SYSTEM MECHANICS

In order for our system to work, the students must understand how the system is enforced. The Honor Council is the judicial body of the honor system. It is made up of sixteen students. Its scope is limited to honor violations as listed in Statute 1 of the student government constitution, and it does not rule on conduct violations. There are six representatives from the senior class, six from the junior class and four representatives from the sophomore class, elected to represent the rest of the student body. There are eight men and eight women on the council. The method of election and duties of the council and its officers can be understood by studying Article VI of the Constitution.

Each student has an important responsibility to the honor system other than his own honor. He must see to it that violations of the system are brought to the attention of the Honor Council for investigation. This is a hard and difficult task, but it must be done if the system is to function effectively. It is the student's responsibility to approach a violator, without feelings of guilt or fear, and ask him to turn himself in. The student violating the code should be given the opportunity to turn himself in to an Honor Council member or the Dean's Office.

PROCEDURES AND MECHANICS USED BY THE HONOR COUNCIL

I. Investigation

A. An honor violator may be turned in to The Dean's Office, the chairman of the Honor Council, or any member of the council.
B. The chairman appoints two Honor Council members to investigate the case with him. It is the chairman's duty to see that the investigation is thorough and complete.
C. Investigation of the accused:
   1. The accused may choose a member of the undergraduate student body of WFU to advise him throughout the investigation. The advisor may not enter the direct questioning of the defendant.
   2. The chairman will not direct any questions to the defendant during the investigation or trial.
   3. The chairman will instruct the defendant of his rights before the investigation begins. The accused does not have to answer any questions unless the advisor is there.
   4. The defendant may ask that any witness be questioned and it is the duty of the investigating committee to see that the witnesses are questioned.
   5. The advisor may be present at the questioning of any witness, but he may not enter the direct questioning.
D. The investigations will be taped to the best of the committee's ability and these tapes will be available for appeal purposes. These are not permanent tapes and will be available only for a limited time. All appeals must be made within one week of the trial.
E. After the investigation the chairman and two investigators will decide whether the case should or should not come to trial according to their constitutional duty.
F. In the event of a trial the investigating committee decides who shall serve a prosecutor and defense. The defendant's wishes will be taken into consideration.

II. The Trial

A. The trial will be taped and records will be kept in the Dean's office or another suitable place. Records of closed trials are available only to Honor Council members and members of the Executive Committee of the faculty.
B. The defendant's advisor may sit with the defendant during the trial but may not enter directly into the proceedings. He may be heard through the defense counsel, and the defense counsel is obligated to speak for the advisor when necessary.
C. The defense counsel is obligated to carry out the defense in a manner agreeable to the defendant and his advisor. All important defense witnesses must be heard during the trial.
D. Nothing may be presented during deliberation which was not presented in the trial. The trial may be reopened for the admission of new testimony provided all those involved are present (i.e. at least prosecutor, defense, advisor, and defendant).

E. The prosecution, defense counsel, defendant, advisor, witnesses, and all spectators (in case of an open trial) will not be present for any deliberations of the Honor Council.

F. The defendant must be informed in so far as possible of all the questions which will be asked by the prosecution and the defense during the trial. The council may question any witness during the trial.

G. After the council reaches a decision, the defendant, his advisor, the prosecution and the defense counsel return so the defendant can be informed of the council's decision. Before the decision is announced the defendant is asked whether he feels he has received a fair trial.

H. After the decision of the council has been stated to the defendant, the chairman, defendant, his advisor, defense and prosecution counsels, retire to discuss and explain the decision of the Honor Council.

EPILOGUE

To maintain an individual uniqueness in the face of threats and pressures is the ultimate challenge and responsibility of every man. —Moustakas

It is not without some degree of irony that this final section should be entitled the "Epilogue" for while it is true that it brings to a close this handbook, hopefully it will also serve as a starting point in kindling a new sense of awareness in you as you enter upon a new phase of your life. For just as this section is both a beginning and an end, so is Wake Forest a contradiction in itself.

Although Wake Forest cannot be divorced from the physical community which surrounds and composes it, Wake Forest is more than an institution of higher learning; it is a time. It is YOUR time, a point in your life when you will for the first time find yourself free to think, to discover, to dream, and to wander in an academic environment. Even though this period of time is relatively brief, the influence that it will have on your life will indeed be profound. When you leave you will take with you not only knowledge and understanding, but also a more fully developed person which will have been shaped by your experiences and encounters. As the years reduce and dull your sense of intellect, you will find that your personality, your unique and distinct reality, which was in part formed by Wake Forest, will remain remarkably unchanged.

But why talk about leaving, you are just arriving. You will find companionship and friendship, imagination and stimulation, but most of all you will find development. College is one of those all too rare times in your life when you are given the opportunity to transform yourself from the person you are to the person you would like to become. Your past literally becomes "your past" and your future actually becomes "your future" when you realize that the primary responsibility for its development has been placed in your hands.

Wake Forest University is here to help you on your journey toward total development. Sometimes its presence will be felt as it leads, at other times as it prods, but at all times as it seeks to guide. Remember, too, that while you are here for an education, be aware that an education springs from more than one source and that an education derived solely from the classroom is limited and not "total." Education will be also found in the friendships you choose to cultivate, the organizations with which you associate, and the interests which you decide to pursue.

Already, I have said more than I intended to say and yet, I find that I have not said enough. Perhaps Al Shoaf, a member of the class of '70 and a former editor of The Student, summed up Wake Forest best when he said:

> The spirit of Wake Forest is not holy nor is it above time but a participant in time: it is a human spirit, and being a human spirit, Wake Forest is not always what it should be, but it slowly, year by year, learns a little more of exactly what it should be. Slowly and sometimes, painfully, the emotion, intellect and imagination of its human community build upon the foundation of its memory implementing the resources of its vision.

Wake Forest University is neither a Utopia nor a Hell on earth although there are certainly elements of both worlds to be found here. Expect neither and you will not come away disappointed.

Find what you will, do what you will, and become what you will be, — I welcome you to Wake Forest.
